My Beloved Judy

was to the post office today to buy some air mail envelopes and there I found out that you receive this V mail letter in its original form. therefore I can afford to write smaller letters.

So people say that air mail and other say that V mail is better so today I'm going to try both. I believe that they will both take about the same time.

There isn't much for us to do at this camp, we are just waiting orders to move on to our replacement depot. From my next camp I'll probably be assigned to some unit. There are a few fellows from my class who are at this camp with me but so far I was only able to locate one of them.

I expect to be moving around for a while, until I get stationed to my unit. Therefore it will take a long time before I receive a letter from you. Nothing would make me more happier than to hear from you. I hope that you will be receiving my letters regularly but don't expect to receive one every morning as you may get five or six letters at one time.

all my love,
Ben

will continue in my air mail letter
