My Beloved Judy,
While I didn't receive my mail from you. I did receive another one of your lovely packages. It contained the February edition of the Reader's Digest and another magazine which I my brother send me previously but thanks very much dear for the package.

Last night I again taken to see a movie named "Bombardier" which while I saw it before I enjoy seeing it over especially since I was at the same time enjoying, with the other fellows, those delicious Barton's chocolate.

When we came back from the show we had some cocoa and then a tasty box of crackers, that was also enclosed in the package.

Besides myself, the other boys want to thank you very much for the small package.

Judith's old friend is asking me to send you his regards. I'll do the same job when I write him. It seems as he again changed his station and now he first is beginning to get around to see how the people act and talk. He wrote saying he was in a tangle similar to the one on 161st New York and the people treated him warmly.

By the reports are in now progressing here, which is good news. I hope we will start making again (I hope) at my time.
Dearst Ben
