My Beloved Judy,
As you might have looked through your diary you probably have noticed that today reminds to be a unforgettable day in the chapter of my life as its my first anniversary that I have been sworn into the Army. Many experiences have taken place during a short period of time with very often the times seems to be much longer, and I'm mainly hoping, at present that I won't have to spend another such anniversary and if I do I wish it will at least be at home. There isn't much more to add about this date except that I miss you very very much and love you with all my heart as I always have and will continue in the future.

There isn't any sense in going over the bad events which took up most of my time but I like to think of those few superb days when we were together for the week that I was on my way to Fort Dix and when the days we were united again during my furloughs. Gosh but those days were really grand. With the final phase of the war nearing possible it won't be long before I see the light of those days again, that's what I desire to live for darling.
