AMERICAN RED CROSS

Monday
Nov 6, 1944

My Beloved Sweetheart,

Tomorrow is the important day back home and the whole world is waiting to know the outcome of the national election.

I placed a small bet of five dollars on the best man, and I'm sure you know who I put my money on.

I'm going to send home a money order this month to cover the cost of a Christmas present for you dear. Do you mind selecting your own gift? There isn't anything worth while that I can buy over here, that's way I figured. its much better if something is bought at home. Would you prefer that I send you the money dear? If so I'll be able to do it next month if you desire.

In many theaters of operations the Army PX (Post Exchange) has the mail order system whereby a serviceman can choose an item from the catalog and the article is mailed to the desired person but that system hasn't been established in my sector yet. It is believed that we will be able to use that plan shortly but when I don't know. A good example of that plan was when I was able to order flowers for you back in Italy.

From our Special Service officer we obtained a Bingo game and I'm startled in seeing the fellows using the game. During the past two nights we averaged about fifteen players and we play ten cents a game. After another few days the boys will lose interest in the game and it will be forgotten. For a change change its entertaining plus occupies ^{our} ~~an~~ time during the evening.

I haven't been attending the movies even though I could have gone. The theatre is not heated and its chilly watching the picture.

any way the pictures they are showing lately aren't worth seeing

There wasn't any mail
today darling but its okay as I don't expect a letter every day
as on other days I receive more than one.

Do you think my free letters are taking longer than air mail. If so I'll always write air mail so long as I can get the envelopes.

Good night darling
I love you very very much
and will forever.

Ben
