My Beloved Sweetheart,

Today is a disappointing day in two ways. First and most important is that I didn't receive any letters from you today dear, and second: Andre came over to my location on his bicycle, to inform me that tomorrow, Robert's folks will be unable to keep their appointment in asking Ray and I for dinner as it's their twenty fifth wedding anniversary, and the family is going visiting elsewhere. Instead we are asked for dinner either Monday or Tuesday whichever is more convenient to Ray and I.

looking forward to that moment,³ not so much because I need a rest, but rather important reason, in that I'm might be able to buy some Christmas gifts to send home. I imagine the location of the rest center will be near or in a fair size city, there are stores for buying desert gifts. I expect my selection to be limited as there is a depleted amount of stock in all the stores. The only city where I think I would have a choice of a variety of items would be Paris but I'll be nowhere near there.

As another week draws to a end darling and my thoughts wander back to those memorable Saturday evenings, I'll say goodnight hold you close, with my arms wrapped around your shoulders, kiss you, then whisper I LOVE YOU, very very much and will forever.
as always,
Gene

Been reading a summary² in the newspaper New York Post of the superb movie picture "Wilson" and I'm extremely anxious to see the picture but as you possibly are aware that one picture banned to servicemen overseas because of the influence the picture might have on the forth coming election. I wish that after the election the picture will be shown over here.

A plan is in progress now whereby the outfit will be rotating its personnel on a few days rest similar to the pattern established in Italy when I went on two five day leaves to the Army rest center. I'm
